

A user wishes to see their overall grade for their classes

The user wants to know what they got on a recent test

They log into the site using their student email and password

They log into the site using their student email and password

The site shows them a list of all their classes and grades

The site shows them a list of classes, so they click on the one they want to check

They click the appropriate term to find their assignment, and the site brings them to a list of the assignments to that term